The Careers Paths In Accounting

When you are considering a career in accountancy, there are generally two different paths you may consider...

01

Two Paths...

Being an accountant 'In Industry' is working for a company such as Google and helping to prepare their accounts.

Being an accountant 'In Practice' is where you would work in an accountancy firm doing work for a wide range of clients from a local hairdresser to a multi-national corporation, like at Forrester Boyd.

Both options provide a range of different opportunities for you to build and develop your skills and knowledge whilst learning the fundamentals of accountancy.

A career in accountancy could open up more doors than you could imagine.

What is an Accountant?

A career in accountancy is about more than just numbers, it's a dynamic, challenging and rewarding career.

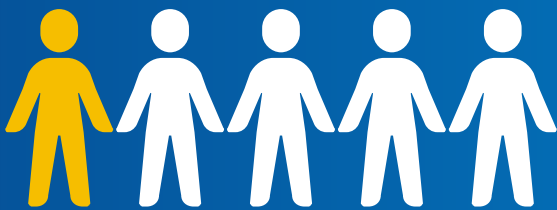

02

It's not just sitting behind a desk...

It's not just someone sitting behind a desk crunching numbers on a spreadsheet. You will build a depth of knowledge in lots of different sectors and business types which will help you to provide a perspective on businesses that not many others can.

Accountancy qualifications are recognised throughout the world and can lead to so much more.

CEO's of FTSE 100 firms started their careers as accountants.

More Than Just Numbers

We firmly believe in developing our talent internally, meaning the sky really is the limit in terms of progression opportunities.

03

Not a walk in the park but...

A career in accounting is not a walk in the park. The advice you give to a client and the decisions you make could make or break a business in all reality.

However just think of the satisfaction that you will get by helping that new business start-up earn their first million or helping a business owner sell his business and embark on a wonderful retirement.

You could be the person with them every step of the way to help them achieve their goals and dreams.

The Trainee Journey

During your time studying you will develop your accountancy knowledge and experience with the support and mentoring of senior colleagues and other trainees on their journey too.

Developing Soft Skills

Any job in professional services requires a certain set of soft skills, known as transferrable skills. We will help you to develop and improve some of these skills during your training programme. These skills include:

05

Communication

The unwavering dedication to achieve a goal or uphold a set of values, often requiring perseverance and determination.

Time Management

The efficient organisation and allocation of one's time and resources to effectively accomplish tasks and achieve goals.

Self-Motivation

The inner drive and determination to pursue and accomplish goals, driven by personal ambition and a strong belief in one's abilities.

Flexibility

The ability to adapt, adjust, and respond effectively to changing circumstances, maintaining performance and productivity.

Teamwork

The collaborative effort of a group, emphasising cooperation, communication, and coordination to achieve shared goals.

Responsibility

The accountability of your actions and decisions, demonstrating dependability and a commitment to ethical behaviour.

Problem Solving

The ability to identify and effectively resolve challenges or issues by using critical thinking, resourcefulness, and creative strategies.

Working Under Pressure

Effectively managing stress and maintaining performance, productivity, and decision-making abilities in demanding situations.

Decisiveness

The ability to make prompt, confident, and well-informed decisions, demonstrating leadership and sound judgement.

What are we Looking for?

We are looking for those people that we know will make an excellent accountant and business adviser. We want team players with drive and ambition.

08

+ Are you a good communicator?

Can you hold a good conversation with someone, but more importantly, do you listen?

+ How are your grammar & literacy?

We need people who have great grammar and literacy skills. Attention to detail really does matter in this job.

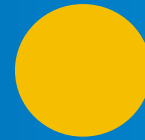

+ Do you like to solve problems?

A job in accountancy is like being a problem solver. You need the patience and commitment to get the job done, no matter how challenging it may seem.

+ Do you have the grades we need?

To become a trainee you must have, or be on track for, at least 3 B's at A Level. (You DO NOT have to have an A level in Maths).

Don't worry if you have answered NO to any of the questions. There are lots of other types of roles in the accountancy world so please do talk to us about other options. We love individuals who have the drive to work hard in order to succeed.

The Next Steps - What to do now

If this sounds like something you want to be a part of then it's time to submit your application and start your journey.

Carrie's Story...

Carrie joined Forrester Boyd in 2009 after completing her A-Levels. 15 years later Carrie is now a Partner at the firm and this is her story in her own words.

10

My A-Levels were not accountancy or business-related so I definitely found it harder to begin with, but the support I received was fantastic.

The social events organised for students were great too. They enabled me to meet colleagues at different levels and within different departments around the firm.

Aside from formal studying, there was so much on the job learning. Seniors and managers were so helpful to support my progression.

After a couple of years I started to specialise in the Charity and Education Sector - fully encouraged and supported.

Prior to qualifying I was managing audits and meeting clients. I was made assistant manager two years after qualifying, then appointed as manager 18 months later with my own portfolio of clients.

In 2019 I was made Partner. Learning and development never ends - I am still fully supported in my training, progression and development. Endless networking opportunities have also helped me to create valuable professional relationships.

I have always been encouraged to aim high, and believe that there is no ceiling to my ambition.
